Sir Ralph Kohn

Pharmacologist and businessman who pursued a parallel passion as an acclaimed baritone

Ralph Kohn was born in Liepzig on 28 July 1922, the son of a banker and a teacher. He moved to the United States in 1939 and attended the University of Chicago, where he received his PhD in organic chemistry in 1953. He then worked as a research chemist at the National Institutes of Health and later at the University of California, San Francisco, where he remained until his retirement in 1994.

Kohn was also an accomplished baritone, and he began his singing career in 1955 at Wigmore Hall in London. He went on to perform with orchestras and choirs around the world, including the Philharmonia Orchestra, the London Symphony Orchestra, and the New York Philharmonic. He also recorded several albums and taught at several universities.

Despite his success as a baritone, Kohn remained a respected scientist, and he was elected to the National Academy of Sciences, the American Academy of Arts and Sciences, and the American Philosophical Society. He was also a member of the Royal Society of Chemistry and the Royal Society of Literature.

Kohn died on October 24, 2016, at the age of 93, after a long illness. He is survived by his second wife, Angela, and their two daughters.

Benjamin Creme

Glasswearer artist who claimed to be in telepathic contact with a 'new world teacher' called Maitreya

Benjamin Creme was born in Brussels on December 2, 1922, and he is renowned for his claims to be in contact with a 'new world teacher' called Maitreya. He was a prominent figure in the esoteric and spiritual movement that emerged in the 1960s and 1970s, and he was closely associated with the Thoth International, a group of esotericists that he founded.

Creme's claims to have had telepathic contact with Maitreya, a Tibetan teacher who is said to have lived in Tibet in the 24th century, were the subject of much controversy and debate. Creme's followers believed that he was a channel for Maitreya's teachings, and they claimed that he had access to spiritual knowledge and wisdom that was not available to others.

Creme's work was widely disseminated through his books, lectures, and public appearances, and he was known for his energetic and charismatic teaching style. He was also a prolific writer, and he published numerous books on spirituality, esotericism, and the paranormal.

Creme died on December 19, 2005, at the age of 83, after a long illness. He is survived by his wife, Claire, and their two children.
